OF CERTAIN BOOKS--AND MEN.

When the wind was east and a sullen sky lowered upon a sodden street, seven students slept and dreamed. In his dream each visited a bookshop and from an ignoble resting-place drew a bundle of pamphlets. There was an Amherst catalogue in the collection, and there was also a speech by Daniel Webster. An Old Farmer's Almanac neighbored a sermon by the Reverend Shear Jashub Baalam on The Iniquity of Unitarianism and A List of Lighthouses and Fog-Signals in the United States. Next came the Annual Report of the New York Central Railroad for 1882 : and under it were six copies of "Tamerlane, by a Bostonian," which the enraptured dreamer bought for five cents apiece.

This is the Tamerlane mythus, read by the light of reason. In the accepted version, the collector—there was but one, and he was awake,—sneered unfeelingly and put the pamphlets back : but any book-hunter who has had experience of Special Providences, (as all have) will find this quite too incredible for fable, even. And since Special Providences are matter of record, and since, moreover, no man can—or durst—name the collector who did this thing, knowledge must revise the tale and science must explain it. Seven collectors dreamed ; the dream was so vivid that it lingered in memory as the apotheosis of a familiar story ; by telepathy the story was transferred to the dreamers' sympathetic acquaintance —say, seven hundred. Each man recalls it, in one or other reading, so often as he does or does not overlook a bargain. At the full of the moon and in the midsummer silly season it gets into the newspapers.

In all seriousness, it is safe to discredit—on general principles —any narrative which fails to recognize the sweet little cherub that sits up aloft keeping watch for the luck of the collector. Sooner or later, whether the book flaunts in a window or hides in a garret, the man to whom it belongs is irresistibly drawn to it. Such an one would intuitively divine that the inconspicuous volume lettered "Il Pesceballo" enshrined the words of Lowell ; that the "Incidental Poems" of Robert Dinsmoor, Rustic Bard, was the medium of Whittier's first appearance in book form ; that the unlovely earthern jar offered at auction in a Maine village (and knocked down, by the way, at ten cents), contained an impossible razor and “ Fanshawe.” Thanks to this blessed principle, or force, or power,—which perhaps it were impious to seek to define—the book-lover may dabble in odd volumes, even. His personal cherub successfully solicited a Boston man to buy the second volume of Matthew Arnold’s “ Poems ” in the edition of 1869,—an unregarded trifle in a dealer’s odds and ends. News of the purchase came to a fellow in the gentle art; and presently the Bostonian received from him the first volume in the same edition, which had been picked up at auction in another city. The Philistine will say that this is improbable: and so it is: but it is true: and equally true is the correlative that, as the fly-leaves showed, these two volumes originally belonged to the same man, and met in the hands of another disciple after Heaven knows what wandering and mischance !

All this of course suggests the axiom that a prize may offer anywhere and at any moment. In the catalogue of a New England public library, “ My Summer in a Garden ” is classified as “ Agriculture ”; and under the general title, “ Medicine,” and the subtitle, “ Pathology : Diseases,” the unconscious humorist who perpetrated the book has listed Defoe’s “ Journal of the Plague in London.” At first glance, the connection between first editions and a certain Connecticut town is not half so apparent as the silken thread of fancy that attaches Mr. Warner to the farming interest. Yet in that Connecticut town a man I love discovered Lowell’s own copy of the Birmingham Address, a very treasure-house of corrections and notes in autograph,—and bore it away for twenty-five cents ! I might add that in the same place, on another occasion, my friend found “ The Rose and the Ring,” blushing, as it were, in its original pink boards—blushing, perhaps, for that it occupied a fifteen-cent counter. But such reminiscences are distracting ; and they are useless : for the Connecticut bookseller is dead, and no more bargains linger in an unlikely place to refresh the spirit of the collector who goes that way.

I pause here to drop a tear for the bookseller. Peace to his ashes ! He was not wholly of them who sell books as butchers sell mutton, by the pound, the bones with the meat; but he had been ; and though from the commercial point of view it seems a sad thing that he should die before he learned the value of his stock, there is warning for others in the circumstance that as he became sophisticated his health failed. Doubtless it would be easy to demonstrate that to buy at five cents and sell for twenty-five is the only rule of conduct calculated to preserve a dealer in body and mind. There was notably one man in the circle of my professional acquaintance who prospered by this means. Yet he has fallen. Injudicious patrons have offered him of the fruit of the tree of knowledge, and he has eaten. His former principle of business now applies to none save drygoods editions—which he sells to the gentlemen who boast that they “buy books for the contents.” I foresaw the end, when he began to prattle of “firsts.” Soon he became curious in bindings. Next he was aware of the extra-illustrator and re-revised his price-list in a commendable endeavor to make the punishment fit the crime ; but now he finds that the collector of book-plates must also be reckoned with : and in the attempt to adjust his tariff to the needs or caprices of five several classes of purchasers, he ages visibly.

When under one’s very eyes a worthy tradesman undergoes this process of degeneration, one sighs for the days of the Crofts sale, when original quarto editions of Shakespeare’s plays fetched from one to eleven shillings apiece ; or one wishes that he might at least have attended the Elliot Woodward auction, in 1869, and bought “A Year’s Life” for twenty-five cents. (Mr. Foote’s copy realized thirty-three dollars.) Always it seems that the time has been when black swans and pink pearls were less rare than they are at present, when robins nested in January, and when the book-worm lifted up his voice in song under the poor man’s window. Some day, under pressure of this conviction, I think I shall take to the road. Your true Yankee never destroys anything but his neighbor’s vices. He will not throw away a book. There are early Poes and Hawthornes, not to speak of Freneaus and Mathers, stuffed in barrels, stored in barn-chambers, in any of the older villages, waiting the advent of the collector who shall be brave enough to set up a peddler’s cart. Dares any affirm that that man will not buy a Bay Psalm Book with a tin teapot ?

I grant that the hero of such a quest may fall victim to the superstition that every printed thing is worthy—a form of dementia to which the collector who rigidly restricts himself to a specialty is perhaps peculiarly liable. But if he survives he will bring back—not the spoil of the land alone, but—enthralling memories of natives who carry the aforesaid superstition to its logical ultimate, that a volume long preserved must be very valuable. These figure at stated intervals in the suburban correspondence of almost any newspaper as owners of “a book printed more than three hundred years ago,” ergo, worth a deal of money. For my own part, I have great joy of the citizens of Grangerville who achieve distinction at so cheap a rate. They are amply fellowed in innocent fatuity : but, while other amiable idiots become enlightened and cease to be diverting, the proud possessor of a worthless black-letter is a well-spring of delight, he and his children’s children, to the latest generation. The average man can not rebuke his folly : he has not the documents. The collector will not : for in a state of society where, the more charming the catalogue, the more destructive is the subsequent bill, an inexpensive pleasure is a thing sedulously to be maintained.

It is not impossible (there are degrees in folly !) that from this admission some would draw the inference that a book-lover deprecates his outlay. I hasten therefore to approve that noble saying of Erasmus: Statimque ut pecuniam accepero, Græcos primum auctores, deinde vestes emam. In this sign we conquer. “And afterwards some clothes” expresses, I am sure, the feeling of every true collector. One may inadvertently acquire books that are no books, one may be seduced by “bargains” that future experience disavows, and then one may seek a safe place and indulge in the language that Erasmus doubtless employed under similar conditions. But the man who regrets or apologizes for making the right choice between a new coat and a faultless first is no more worthy to be called collector. Indeed I question whether he who does not persistently and joyously buy books he cannot afford is entitled to all the honor attaching to that name.

Here one might enlarge upon those pleasures of the chase which are revealed to the impecunious alone. Yet the millionaire is a man and a brother: and I could find it in my heart to wish he might experience the emotions that an auction stirs in us. (Observe I do not say we attend auctions: rather forego the richest entertainment earth affords—that provided by the woman-who-wants-to-bid—than openly countenance the damnable heresy that law-reports and medical treatises and volumes of sermons are books !) Figure to yourself the collector, removed from obtrusive rivalries and the sordid eloquence of the auctioneer, sitting down with his catalogue to choose the lots he must have and the others that he would like to have. Fancy his earnest questionings whether a certain classic may not at this time respond to a modest bid; whether the “nine volumes” so ambiguously described include first editions; whether in a given instance it will be wiser to say “no limit” or to let the temptation pass and trust a Special Providence at some future time to be made manifest? Picture the debate between bargains and bankruptcy, the occasional conflicts of conscience and inclination, the dreams of what books may come! And finally try to do justice to the resolute and happy heroism that mails a list of bids which may obliterate a month’s salary! The man who had a standing order for the Kelmscott Press publications as issued knows naught of these tragic joys. To him who would make trial of a new sensation, all sensations, they are cheap at any price.

It will be quite safe, however, to leave the praise of poverty to the rich, those ardent champions of inexpensive virtues. Only let me confess, before we depart the subject, that discretion fixes a limit to my solicitude for my fellow poor. Since I do not affect omniscience, I decline to decide, even for their benefit, the rival claim of auctioneer and bookseller to the chief place in their regard. And though I have known a judicious smile to reduce the price of a book one-half, I shall not advise them how to encounter the enemy—whether in the trustfulness that (may) win forbearance or in the calm superiority that (may) inspire apologetic awe. Yet surely it is well to warn all and sundry that, while a trick of countenance may sometimes serve one's turn, enduring success in collecting rests upon other foundations, that these are in a measure commercial, and that a book-merchant of whatsoever class may contribute to establish them. Of course a student of catalogues looks to share the reproach of Magliabecchi, that he was a learned man among booksellers and a bookseller among learned men: but perhaps this is not quite so terrible as it sounds. There are booksellers and booksellers, and again there are learned men and—persons who join their titles to their signatures. If it seemed worth while, it would be interesting to contrast a score of book-hunters with an equal number of gentlemen more or less learned, who condemn their pursuit: but we have the courage of our convictions, and we are already vain enough. Let us pass to consider how we may add to our faith knowledge.

And first a word concerning Mr. Foley's experience. When I began to know him, years ago, he was just passing out of the scrapbook stage. At this period one is able to appreciate, willing to collect, almost anything: he cuts up catalogues and toilsomely constructs long lists of books that God permitted to be created and advertised, but never suffers to be sold. It is the young collector's apprenticeship to genuine enthusiasm. If he boggles at the scrapbooks, be sure he will never go further. My friend survived the test. As he gave over the ambition to own a duplicate of every book in the Congressional Library, he began to long for intimate knowledge of a few books, say eight or ten thousand. Then he condensed the scrapbooks into a little volume that, whether for additions or corrections, has accompanied him ever since. It has been my happiness to watch its expansion into this volume. Public and society libraries, dealers' pricelists and private collections have, in the course of the process, suggested details, and to the friends who have been most helpful Mr. Foley will make his own acknowledgment. It is my duty to bear testimony to the untiring zeal and prodigious patience that have carried on a work with which I am proud to be—ever so remotely—associated.

The present enterprise aside, I am sure that Mr. Foley would second me in urging the reader to treasure the suggestion of a home-made, strictly personal, pocket bibliography—a compend of titles, dates, identifying features, and average prices. One may be ever so conversant with authorities, but find at the critical moment that he has forgotten some all-important detail. A portable memorandum will tend then and always to disburden the memory, sustain the purse, and solace the soul. And be it remembered that one's cherub will not strive against willful ignorance and that the Special Providences which may bless the lame seldom accrue to the benefit of the lazy !

Since much of this may seem assured and peremptory, it is time to confess that I have no collection : only a bookcase. I have not even a copy of that "unique" Whittier title, the "Narrative of James Williams," which, once announced, has begun to repeat itself with distressing frequency, as "unique" titles sometimes do—one happy man in Boston exhuming two copies from his anti-slavery collection. Yet since it is permitted to love the things one does not own and to glorify the deeds one can not imitate, I do not apologize for yielding to the temptation to gossip. If opportunity served I would like to speak of, for instance, the rare books that—like the works of Thomas Taylor, the Platonist,—are found in every catalogue. So I might tell how Mrs. Browning bought for her son first editions of Shelley and Keats, and recommend her example to American mothers who may in like manner entertain Robert Brownings unawares. Using the euphemism of the delightful William James, (who wrote, in 1817, of "Military Occurrences . . . between Great Britain and the United States") I could mention those bibliographies which sagacious booksellers might catalogue under the heading, "Facetiae." Indeed, one who writes of books finds many matters pregnant with eloquent discourse : yet since to some I may seem to have yielded our position, I must turn to right myself, and so make end.

Yet, on second thought, what to the lover of books matters the world's opinion? If he be true man, the lust of possession has never blinded him to worth or worthlessness ; rarity has not become synonymous with value ; things have not usurped the place of qualities. True, he has had his defeats and his successes, like other men,—his little hour of triumph, his days of bitterness and his nights of humiliation. Fortune has frowned on him, perhaps. Friends have misinterpreted his kindest purpose. Often he has failed in his duty to himself, in which, if one rightly perceives it, resides the sum of duties. But, God be thanked, there are friends who have patience and who do not misunderstand, voices that rise above the turmoil audibly to console and strengthen! God be thanked that, though he sin and suffer, he may have fellowship with them that aspire, and the transmitted hope that he may win to their heights and, whether here or otherwhere in the material universe, dwell in the spirit in their clear sunlight !

Thus, by these devious ways, we return to our—dreams ? Shall we say the brightest concerns that day when every Horace shall have his Mæcenas and every Dibdin, his Spencer ? Not so whilst we seriously consider our books, arch-enemies of frivolity and low aims. Æsop, Saadi, Cervantes, Regnard, have been taken by corsairs, left for dead, sold for slaves, and know the realities of human life.

PREFATORY NOTE.

The assumed requirements of the collector, and others likely to feel interest in such a compilation as the present—and these requirements constitute the compiler's law—seeming rather to be served by a reliable reference handbook than by an elaborate essay in bibliography, the lines upon which it has been compiled will be readily apparent. It will also be understood why its scope is limited to the authors of the century indicated, 1795–1895,—the principal creators of American literature: the writings of Jonathan Edwards, the Mathers, and others of ante-revolutionary days, more reasonably demanding classification as "Americana" or "Divinity."

The preceding paragraph will explain why authors whose works are almost wholly of a scientific, political or religious character are omitted, and why occasional pamphlets of similar nature are included only when the literary standing of the author demanded reference to every production. The same rule has been applied to works with which the authors represented were editorially connected.

As an important step towards securing accuracy and fulness of detail the lists prepared of their writings have been submitted to the living authors included, for their approval, and any additions which they might suggest. All have courteously and cordially responded, with very few exceptions,—and of these last no writings are likely to exist save such as are duly chronicled on the publishers' bulletins.

Contributions to magazines, annuals and other serials are not quoted separately, unless, as in the case of Dr. Holmes, the articles, or many of them, have never been reprinted. Reports of commemorative exercises, celebrations, or similar occasions, containing addresses, poems, etc., by eminent authors, and each of itself complete, receive separate mention, as also do notable reprints which experience proves to be more eagerly sought after than the original issues. The Aldrich numbers of the "Vest Pocket" series, not to mention several less recent reprints, very forcibly confirm this assertion.

Whilst it may be urged that the titles of works not wholly the production of the authors to whom they are credited, assume rather formidable proportions, recent experiences prove the Aldrich collector ready to pay a higher price for "Jubilee Days" than for "Poems, by T. B. A." ; that the Emerson collector desires the "Sermon at the Ordination of Rev. Chandler Robbins, by Rev. Henry Ware," as eagerly as he does the "Essays" of 1841 ; that the Holmes collector hungers for "Songs of the Class of 1829," especially the little pamphlet of 1854, as intensely as for "The Harbinger" ; that the Lowell worshipper "hunts" assiduously for "Memorial : R. G. S.," and reports of various celebrations, and the Whittierite dreams himself the possessor of the Kenoza Lake pamphlet, or "Incidental Poems of the Rustic Bard." Such examples, and they are only a few of many, make it apparent that in extension of lists the collector will more readily condone sins of commission than those of omission.

In most cases the titles have been copied from the title page ; where the work was not accessible the most approved authority was followed. The works of many of the authors included, more especially Cooper and Irving, were published simultaneously in New York and London, and sometimes with alteration of date and title ; in such instances it is thought best to quote the American issue, as that most esteemed by collectors.

Believing the author best qualified to decide upon the title of his work, alteration or abbreviation of the original is avoided, unless uniformity and practicability suggested prefixing to the title the designation "edited," or "translated" ; or where such titles as "Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym, etc.," made abbreviation seem advisable. In such exceptions the condensation is indicated by "leaders," and the reading retained is such as not to obscure identification of title.

In details as to size, date and place of publication, etc., the methods observed in compiling the higher class of modern catalogues commend themselves as most comprehensive and effective for the collector's purpose, and are accordingly adopted. Where place or date of publication is omitted from title page, such additions appear in brackets, thereby rendering unnecessary the repetition of "n. p.; n. d.," etc. Other additions by the compiler will also appear in brackets, or in the form of notes appended to certain titles.

When a work is credited to an author and his (or her) connection therewith is not indicated on the title page, to facilitate identification such work is included in the alphabetically arranged lists of anonymous and pseudonymous titles, even though the author's name should appear in the index or appended to his contribution. With the same view a title is termed anonymous where the title page is so, even if the work be copyrighted by the author, or his name, initials or pseudonym appear in connection with the introduction, notes, or elsewhere. Any work including two or more authors is credited to the author whose contribution occupies first place in arrangement or importance ; in all cases of collaboration cross-references indicate the authors represented and remove the necessity of crediting such work to each. A few titles which do not appear in their proper arrangement, owing to errors in transcription and other causes, are appended at the end of the volume.

The points here dwelt upon will, it is hoped, prove explanatory of the lines followed. There remains for the compiler only to express his gratitude to those who have aided him, one of whom, the late beloved Professor Child, of Harvard University, who supplied, and at much personal inconvenience, extensive and important data, has passed beyond the reach of such acknowledgments. Thanks are due, and are hereby tendered, to the several authors and publishers who with unfailing courtesy and kindness answered the demands made upon them, this more especially so in the case of Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., whose connection with so many notable authors greatly enlarged their proportion of the enquiries ; to Charles F. Libbie, Esq., of Boston, whose valuable bibliographical library was generously placed at the compiler's service ; to Miss Louise Imogen Guiney, of Auburndale, who kindly supplied from her collection the titles of otherwise inaccessible works of Thomas William Parsons, and to Dr. R. M. Bucke, of London, Ontario, to whom is almost wholly due the credit for the list of Walt Whitman's writings.

~~Contemporaries assert that Cooper was certainly the author of this tale, the copyright proceeds of which were regularly received by him; the publishers of the work also believed him to be the author. He was so very unpopular at the time that he, very reasonably, deemed it best for the prospects of the publication that he should appear in no closer relation than that of editor.~~

ERNEST DRESSEL NORTH.

NOTES ON RARE BOOKS

SINCE the initial publication of Mr. Slater's "Book Prices Current" in 1887, and Mr. Livingston's "American Book Prices Current" in 1895, the public, as well as the bookseller, has been kept reasonably well informed on the prices of rare books, and the fact that the weekly and sometimes the daily press has reference to such sales, is highly significant of the fact that the public, as a whole, is becoming not merely curiously interested, but intelligently so. Formerly the old bookseller looked mysteriously at his wares when asked a price, and with much vehemence notified his customer of his ignorance or lack of knowledge, but that he, the bookseller, was all-wise, and entirely able to give information where it was really important to do so. This homily is brought forth by the fact that the auction season just closed in both England and America has been remarkable in many ways, notably because of the character of the books sold and also the high prices some of them realized. Now that Mr. Slater has decided to issue his volume according to season and not according to calendar, one may review the bookselling season on both sides of the water at the same time. Two large private sales have been consummated which must ever be handed down in the annals of bookselling as of the highest importance. One, gigantic in its importance, and the other far-reaching in its dispersion. I refer to the purchase by Mr. Morgan of his great collection of Incunabula, MS., etc., and the other the purchase en bloc, by Mr. Rich nond, of the Lefferts collection. In the case of the latter, some books were sold at auction in London and New York, but a large majority in value, if not in bulk, changed hands by private means, before the ordinary public had its chance.

Notwithstanding these two sales, amounting in value to over $1,000,000, the auction season just closed was a notable one. We quote a few of the record prices to show the upward tendency: Caxton's "Royal Book," £2,225; Shakespeare (the second folio), £690; Shakespeare

(the third folio), £755; Shakespeare's "Poems," 1645 (Mr. McKee's copy), £1,250; Milton's "Lycidas," £199; De Foe's "Robinson Crusoe," £245; Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield," 2 vols., £134, and many others. Taken at random the following important items were sold during the year: A' Kempis's "Imitation of Christ," Augsburg, 1471, printed by Zanier; Dante's "Divine Comedy." Florence, 1481 (with Botticelli's designs); Homer, "Works," Florence, 1488 (printed by Demetrius Cretensis); Lydgate's translation of the "Fall of Princes," printed by Pynson, London, 1494; Les Fevre's "Recuyvles of Troye," London, 1503; Alexander's "Recreations with the Muses," London, 1637; Chapman's "Homer," London, 1598; Queen Elizabeth's Prayer Book, London, 1578; Florio's "Montaigne," London, 1603; Shakespeare's "Rape of Lucrece," London, 1624; Walton's "Complete Angler," London, 1653; Herrick's "Hesperides" (original sheep), London, 1646; Bunyan's "Holy War," London, 1682; "Kilmarnock," Burns, 1786; Gray's "Elegy," London, 1751; Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," London, 1726-1727; Watts's "Divine Songs," London, 1715; Mrs. Browning's "Battle of Marathon," London, 1820; "Sonnets from the Portuguese," Reading, 1820; Keats's "Lamia," London, 1820; Lamb's "King and Queen of Hearts," 1806 (previously unknown); "Elia," London, 1823-1833 (boards, uncut); Scott's "Waverley" (original boards); Eliot's "Indian Bible," London, 1661-1663; Budd's "Good Order," printed by Bradford in Philadelphia, 1685; Colden's "Five Indian Nations," New York, 1727; Franklin's "Cato Major," Philadelphia, printed by Franklin, 1744; Thomas's "New Jersey," for 1698 and many others.

These books picked out at random, running in price from $185 to $11,000, indicate the tendency in collecting, and although many of the items are high priced, they were not always so; it therefore behooves the collector of to-day to have the prophet's vision, so he may become the opulent owner of to-morrow.

HOLMES, OLIVER WENDELL. 1809-1894.

Harvard Register. [Containing Holmes' first published poems.] 12 numbers, 8vo. Cambridge, 1827-28.

The Collegian. In Six Parts. [February-July, inclusive, 1830.] 8vo. Cambridge, 1830.

* * Published by the undergraduates of 1830 and 1831, and edited by a club consisting of two members of the class of 1830 (one of whom was John Osborne Sargent), and three members of the class of 1831. The six numbers contain twenty-four poems by Holmes, only a few of which were retained in the 1836 and subsequent editions of Poems; and contain also the first printed composition of John Lothrop Motley.

The Amateur. A Journal of Literature and the Fine Arts. [June 15, 1830-June 4, 1831, inclusive.] 22 parts, 4to. Boston, 1830-31.

* * This publication contained seventeen poems, at least, by Holmes, of which only eight were included in the collective editions of his poems. The paintings of the Athenæum Gallery formed the subjects of several of Holmes' early poems, which may explain why the publication entitled "Poetical Illustrations of the Athenæum Gallery of Paintings" (8vo., Boston, 1827), has been frequently ascribed to him. The real author of the volume was William G. Crosby.

Poems and Songs of the Class of 1829 [including 20 poems by Holmes]. Third Edition. Printed for the Use of the Class only. 8vo. Boston, 1868.

* * Earnest efforts, during the past five years, have resulted in failure to discover any information relative to the "second edition" which would seem indicated by the preceding title. No such edition was known to surviving members of the class or their relatives (Dr. Holmes' copy was one of the 1868 issue); and considering that the volume was intended for members of the class, only, some purpose, humorous or otherwise, may have suggested the "third edition" inscription.

* * Many of Dr. Holmes' contributions to medical literature have never been reprinted, which will explain why so much more space is given to separate titles of his magazine articles than to those of other authors included in this publication. Besides the articles contributed to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal which are named in this list, the numbers of that journal for May 17, 1855, August 2, and September 5, 1867, June 17, 1875, September 28, 1876, June 16, and 23, 1881, February 23, 1882, and February 7, 1889, contain letters, sonnets, and papers of lesser importance. A list of his numerous contributions to The Atlantic Monthly is rendered unnecessary by the index volume. The New England Magazine, 1831-1835, published several of his early writings, including the first portion of The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table. With few exceptions the magazines named contain all his contributions to periodical literature.

IRVING, WASHINGTON. 1783-1859.

A Voyage to the Eastern Part of Terra Firma, or the Spanish Main in South-America, during the Years 1801, 1802, 1803 and 1804. By F. Depons. . . . Translated by An American Gentleman. 3 volumes, 8vo. New York, 1806.

(With J. K. Paulding and William Irving.) Salmagundi; or the Whim-Whams and Opinions of Launcelot Langstaffe, Esq., and Others. 2 volumes, or 20 numbers [January, 1807-January, 1808], 12mo. New York, 1807-1808.

A History of New York from the Beginning of the World to the End of the Dutch Dynasty. . . . By Diedrich Knickerbocker. Folded view of New Amsterdam. 2 volumes, 12mo. New York, 1809.

The Poetical Works of Thomas Campbell. Including Several Poems from the Original Manuscript, never before published in this Country. To which is prefixed a Biographical Sketch of the Author, by A Gentleman of New-York. 2 volumes, 12mo. Philadelphia, Baltimore, Albany [etc.], 1810.

“Published by Edward Earle, Philadelphia. Also by D. Mallory & Co., Boston; P. H. Nicklin & Co., Baltimore; Lyman, Hall & Co., Portland; and Swift and Chipman, Middlebury, Vt. Fry and Kammerer, Printers, 1810.” So reads the imprint on the original board covers of the copy from which this title is transcribed; the corresponding inscription on title page reads, “Printed for D. W. Farrand & Green, Albany. Also for E. Earle, Philadelphia,” etc.; on the title page of the Boston Public Library copy this is changed to “Printed for P. H. Nicklin & Co., Baltimore, also for D. W. Farrand and Green, Albany,” etc., and it seems safe to assume that on the title pages of copies assigned to any of the booksellers named their business place would take precedence—the original covers retaining the Philadelphia imprint as here indicated.

(Edited, anonymously.) The Analectic Magazine, containing Selections from Foreign Reviews and Magazines of such Articles as are Most Valuable, Curious, or Entertaining. Portraits and illustrations. 6 volumes, 8vo. Philadelphia, 1813-15.

* * The first number, January, 1813, was issued with the title "Select Reviews, and Spirit of Foreign Magazines. New Series;" the note, "To Readers," on last page of wrapper, conveying the editor's apologies for his inability to attend to the editorial work of that number, his remonstrance against unwelcome compliments, extravagant panegyrics, etc., and the announcement that the title of next number "will probably vary from that hitherto adopted." The publication contained, in addition to the selections, several original poems, sketches, reviews, and biographies, by Irving, Paulding and others. Commencing with vol. vii., the title was changed to The Analectic Magazine and Naval Chronicle.

Biography of James Lawrence, late Captain in the Navy of the United States; together with a Collection of Papers relative to the Action between the Chesapeake and Shannon, and the Death of Captain Lawrence. Portrait. 18mo. New Brunswick, 1813.

* * The biographical sketch by Irving, pp. 9-60, is reprinted from The Analectic Magazine for August, 1813.

The Poetical Works of Thomas Campbell. Comprising Several Pieces not contained in any Former Edition. To which is prefixed a Revised and Improved Biographical Sketch of the Author [pp. 1-24], by A Gentleman of New-York. 24mo. [Philadelphia, 1815.]

* * The engraved false title bears the imprint of the publisher, Edward Earle, which is omitted on title page. The false title makes no reference to revision of the biographical sketch, which is considerably altered from that of the 1810 edition; nor to the "several pieces" referred to on title page, and which may have been absorbed by Caroline, pp. 204-209, the only poem here added to those of the previous collection. The biographical sketch, in its revised form, was first published in The Analectic Magazine for March, 1815.

The Sketch-Book of Geoffrey Crayon, Gent. 7 parts, 8vo. New York, 1819-20.

* * Arranged for two volumes; the pagination of parts i., ii., iii., iv., forming vol. 1., occurs in regular volume sequence: whilst the separate pagination of each part is retained in parts v., vi., vii., or second volume.

Life, Letters, and Diary of Lucy Larcom, by Daniel D. Addison. Portrait. 16mo. Boston, 1894.

* * * Miss Larcom's earliest printed compositions appeared in the pages of The Lowell Offering, to which she and her sister were regular contributors. The numbers of this publication for October and December, 1840, and January and February, 1841, Nos. 1-4, were issued in quarto form, with the title "The Lowell Offering: a Repository of Original Articles on Various Subjects, written by Operatives;" the number for April, 1841, issued as Vol. 1, No. 1, appeared as "The Lowell Offering; a Repository of Original Articles, written exclusively by Females employed in the Mills"—and in octavo form, as did all subsequent issues, the sub-title undergoing occasional slight alterations. Vol. 1 consisted of the numbers for April to December, inclusive, 1841; vol. 2, January to September, inclusive, 1842; vol. 3, October, 1842, to September, 1843, inclusive; vol. 4, November, 1843, to October, 1844, inclusive; and vol. 5, January to December, inclusive, 1845. At this date the publication was discontinued, but was resumed, April, 1848, as "The New England Offering: written by Females who are or have been Factory Operatives. Harriet Farley, Editor." The numbers for April to December, inclusive, 1848, appeared as "new series, Nos. 1-9;" the number for January, 1849, as "Vol. 1, No. 1," whilst some of the subsequent numbers, including the last issued, March, 1850, appeared with the imprint, vols. vi., vii., viii., indicating the publication as a continuation of The Lowell Offering. Two short-lived Lowell rivals of The Offering, and now of almost equal scarcity, were The Operatives' Magazine, published in 1842, and The Ladies' Pearl, 1841-43. Whittier contributed original poems to the latter publication.

Leaves of Grass. [32 poems.] Portrait. 16mo. New York, 1856.

* * In this issue the preface of first edition is worked into four poems, By Blue Ontario's Shore, Song of the Answerer, To a foil'd European Revolutionaire, and Song of Prudence. Owing to the storm of criticism which arose against it, the New York publishers withdrew from its publication, and it was issued by the author, with imprint, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1856.

Leaves of Grass. [154 poems.] Portrait, now first published. 12mo. Boston. Year 85 of the States. 1860-61.

* * Business conditions, resulting from the Civil War, having caused the failure of the publishers, Thayer & Eldridge, the plates of this edition were sold at auction to an unscrupulous publisher who, for many years, printed from them, retaining the imprint and date of the Thayer edition. The plates were some years since purchased by the author's literary executors.

Drum-Taps. 12mo. New York, 1865.

* * Owing to the death of President Lincoln the author delayed the publication of this volume, of which some copies were bound at the time, until a few weeks later, when he added When Lilacs Last in the Door-Yard bloomed; O Captain, my Captain; and a few other poems, which were added (with pagination distinct from that of the original collection) after page 72 as, Sequel to Drum-Taps (since the Preceding came from the Press). When Lilacs Last in the Door-Yard bloomed, and other Pieces. Washington, 1865-6.

Leaves of Grass. 12mo. New York, 1867.

* * In this edition the poems are re-arranged, and many are published for the first time. The later issues included Drum-Taps (omitted at first), also Sequel to Drum-Taps, and Songs before Parting.

Specimens of American Poetry [including The Sicilian Vespers, by Whittier], with Critical and Biographical Notices. By Samuel Kettell. 3 volumes, 12mo. Boston, 1829.

American Anecdotes, Original and Select [including The Spectre Ship of Salem, by Whittier]. By An American. 2 volumes, 12mo. Boston, 1830.

* * "An American" is stated by Sabin to have been Freeman Hunt, whilst Cushing credits the work to Lydia Maria Child.

Legends of New England. 12mo. Hartford, 1831.

The American Common-Place Book of Poetry: with occasional Notes, by George B. Cheever. 12mo. Boston, 1831.

* * This volume contains many of Whittier's early poems, (including the principal portion of The Minstrel Girl) now first collected, and of which only a few were retained in any edition of his poems.

[Anonymous.] Moll Pitcher, a Poem. 8vo. Boston, 1832.

Justice and Expediency; or Slavery considered with a View to its Rightful and Effectual Remedy, Abolition. (500 copies.) 8vo. Haverhill, 1833.

* * Also reprinted for gratuitous distribution, by the Anti-Slavery Society of New York, 8vo. New York, 1833.

Mogg Megone, a Poem. 32mo. Boston, 1836.

The Laurel: a Gift for all Seasons. Being a Collection of Poems. By American Authors [Whittier, Holmes, Longfellow, and others]. 18mo. Boston, 1836.

* * Besides two poems of this collection, bearing Whittier's name, A Love Letter, by J. G. W., is ascribed to him, by Charles A. Dana and others, but bears no trace of his style and cannot be accepted conclusively as his.

A Full Statement of the Reasons which were in Part offered to the Committee of the Legislature of Massachusetts on the Fourth and Eighth of March, showing why there should be no Penal Laws enacted, and no Condemnatory Resolutions passed by the Legislature, respecting Abolition[s]ts and Anti-Slavery Societies. 8vo. Boston, 1836.

* * Containing Stanzas for the Times, pp. 46-48, by Whittier, reprinted from The Boston Courier.

Views of Slavery and Emancipation ; from Society in America.
By Harriet Martineau. [With introduction by Whittier.]
16mo. New York, 1837.

Letters from John Quincy Adams to his Constituents of the Twelfth Congressional District in Massachusetts. To which is added his Last Speech in Congress [and two poems, Stanzas for the Times, and Lines written on the Passing of Mr. Pinckney's Resolutions, by Whittier]. 12mo. Boston, 1837.

Poems written during the Progress of the Abolition Question in the United States, between the years 1830 and 1838.
16mo. Boston, 1837.

[Anonymous.] Narrative of James Williams, an American Slave ; who was for Several Years a Driver on a Cotton Plantation in Alabama. Portrait. 16mo. New York, 1838.

A copy of this work has recently been sold by Messrs. Bangs & Co., New York, for $111, and in connection therewith a statement is repeated, which was advanced in 1895, to the effect that Whittier's connection with the Narrative was never made public. This view is not supported by the fact that the Proceedings of the American Anti-Slavery Society, Third Decade, 1864 (which appears in its chronological arrangement in the present list), contains a catalogue of anti-slavery publications, 1750-1863, where the Narrative is described as "drawn up by J. G. Whittier;" and considering Whittier's devotion to, and labors in, the anti-slavery cause, the appearance of his name on the original board cover of the little volume would scarcely seem in keeping with the theory of rigid secrecy.

Address read at the Opening of the Pennsylvania Hall, on the 15th of Fifth Month, 1838. 8vo. Philadelphia, 1838.

Reprinted in History of Pennsylvania Hall, which was destroyed by a Mob, 17th May, 1838. Plates. 8vo. Philadelphia, 1838.

Moll Pitcher and The Minstrel Girl. Poems. Revised Edition. 18mo. Philadelphia, 1840.

The North Star : the Poetry of Freedom, by her Friends. 18mo. Philadelphia, 1840.

* * Edited, anonymously, by Whittier, who, in addition to the prefatory note and poem, pp. v.-vii., contributed the poems, The Exiles—a Tale of New England, pp. 62-73, and The World's Convention, pp. 108-117, besides which the poem, Granada, pp. 105-107, is almost certainly his. Among the other contributors were his sister, Elizabeth H. Whittier, James T. Fields, John Pierpont, Hannah F. Gould and Elizabeth Lloyd, Jr., (afterwards Mrs. Howell) whose poem, Egypt, an Unfinished Fragment, pp. 86-101, was prepared for publication, with extensive alterations, by Whittier, to whom she was supposed betrothed.

The Anti-Slavery Pic-nick, or Speeches, Poems, Dialogues and Songs [by Whittier and others] for Use in Schools and Anti-Slavery Meetings. [Edited] By John Collins. 12mo. Boston, 1842.

[Anonymous.] The Stranger in Lowell. 12mo. Boston, 1845.

Voices of Freedom. Fourth [fifth, seventh, etc.,] Complete Edition. 12mo. Philadelphia, 1846.

* * All copies known bear some such indication of edition as here given, which can be accepted as nothing more than a desire, on the publisher's part, to stimulate a demand for the publication. The dates appended to some of the poems seem sufficient to prove the improbability of any such conclusion as the inscription quoted may suggest.
